Please note that this particular problem was extremely difficult to get a handle on. The Ingo method produced many confusing and undecoded ideograms.

In attempting the "Belga" method, it was like watching a Keystone Cops episode where the action was so fast as to be confusing. I have written down those impressions as well as could be described ~~at~~ given the incredible rate of perception. It was almost like "Here it is - WINK. Here it is - WINK, etc.

The first impression was looking at the earth from a very great height and seeing the North American continent and Europe / Africa, from directly over the Atlantic Ocean. There is a sense of movement, rapid movement from East to West, a smell of burning and loud noises, almost like banging.

Focus ~~then~~^{is} then averted to Washington, D.C., and the White House. The flag is flying at half-mast and crowds are gathered at the fence surrounding the White House. There is a feeling of great sadness within the crowd, while at the same time, a feeling almost like relief. The sadness has been occasioned because of the death of military personnel who were killed while aborting an air attack directed at Washington.

The attack was led by fanatical supporters of Gadhafi, who has urged the action based on his pride rather than his concern for his people and his beliefs.

These actions have aroused a fear among his former supporters both in Libya and in neighboring countries, that the time has come to "replace" him.

This time he has gone too far and they fear that his actions will lead to sanctions by not only the U.S. but by other countries who have in the past supported him.
